LAUNCH SENECA STOYE IN.

NAVAL RESERVE BOAT WAS AID-ING IN SLOCUM WORK.

Struck Rock Off North Brother Island —Hull of Burned Steamer to Be Towed to Erie Basin' Te-day—Hospital Vie-tim Dies of Burns—Identifications.

The Seneca, one of the two Naval Reserve launches that have been plying be-tween North Brother Island and the Health Department dock at 132d street since the Slocum disaster, ran on a rock as she was leaving the North Brother Island landing. at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and stove a hole in her bottom. The other launch, the Oneida, was just leaving for The Bronx side. She returned quickly and passed a tow to the Seneca, which was filling rapidly. The injured boat, with her fires drawn and lurching unsteadily in her course, was pulled rapidly over to the place where the Slocum, with the Merritt-Chapman derricks, lay. Some policemen had jumped aboard and were bailing steadily all the way.

Inspector Albertson was just returning from the wreck and hearing the Oneida's distress signals, put about and hurried back to give orders for a derrick to raise the Seneca out of the water. The derrick William H. Morse, which can lift twenty tons, lifted the launch, which, with the water in her may have weighed ten tons, like a toy as soon as steam could be raised.

Then it was seen that there was a rent in the Seneca's bottom near the keel on the port side some eight inches long and wide enough for a man to ram his fist into.

The boat was patched up with board, canvas and cleats and replaced in the water. She was ordered back to the naval militia ship New Hampshire. Inspector Albertson will get along hereafter with only one launch and after to-day may dispense even Arrangements were completed yesterday to tow the hulk of the Gen. Slocum to the Robins Company's dock, Erie Basin, Brooklyn, at 7 o'clock this morning.

The mud was cleared from the lower part of the hull, but no more bodies were found. Coroner O'Gorman visited the wreck in the afternoon and hoisted out a lot of stuff from the forward part of the hull and took it to North Brother Island to be used in future official proceedings. In this part of the vessel, besides the bunk shelves where the crew slept, there were a number of barrels of kerosene and maa number of barrels of kerosene and machine oil, a lot of paint kegs, some cases of glassware packed in straw and a collection of miscellaneous rubbish. An old reed settee, of the "tête-à-tête" style, and an old wardrobe were among the things hauled up.

The badly burned fragments of a gaudy blue and yellow silk banner inscribed "William S. Devery Association, Ninth Assembly District, Eighth Election District," were found in the débris in the after part of the wreck. The workmen who found them wrapped the charred and olled fragments up, saying: "I'm going to take this to Bill. He'll give me good money for it."

Ninth street of burns. Her husband and two children perished when the Slocum was burned.

Deputy Charities Commissioner Dougherty, who has arranged for the funerals of the unidentified dead, decided yesterday to inter immediately all the bodies left unclaimed at noon. There were twelve of these, one of which was a charred body buried with the twenty-nine burned victims last Wednesday. It was to all seeming positively identified by means of jewelry, and disinterred at the request of relatives. When the casket was opened at the morgue, however, they declared they were mistaken, and the body had to be buried again. Commissioner Dougherty then gave orders that no more disinterred caskets be opened.

Owing to the delay of the Board of Health in making out burial certificates, the one hearse and six undertaker's wagons didn't get started for Middle Village, L. I., until 5 o'clock. As the trip requires about hree hours, the interment of the twelve bodies was made by moonlight.

It was announced that no more burials was made by moonlight.

It was announced that no more burials of unidentified will occur before Tuesday, as to give the cemetery employees a few days' rest.

According to the figures in the Department of Charities office twenty-one of the fifty bodies buried up to Thursday have since been identified, disinterred, and re-since been identified, disinterred, and reburied.

The steamer Fidelity brought to the morgue late yesterday afternoon seven more unidentified bodies, and a box containing a portion of the leg of an adult, the foot of a child, and the ankle of a child. They were thought to belong to two persons, probably to two of she charred victims buried last Saturday. These were the last bodies remaining at the Island.

In order to save from inconvenience the thirty men who have worked faithfully at the morgue for ten days, Commissioner Tully went to Comptroller Grout's office yesterday and arranged that they should be pald promptly on Monday.

The Coroner's office in the borough of The Bronx will be open to-day for the benefit of persons who lost friends or relatives in the disaster and who wish to claim jewelry taken from the corpess.

A memorial service will be held in St. Mark's Church to-day at half past 10 o'clock Fearing a crowd of curiosity seekers, Pastor Haas has decided to admit only those to whom tickets have been issued. Inspector Schmittberger has detailed fifty of his German speaking policemen to handle the crowd.

THE DEAD NUMBER ABOUT 940.

POLICE MAKE UP LISTS OF DEAD. MISSING, HURT AND UNHURT.

69 Per Cent, of These on the Sleeum Per ished-Two Families Lost Six Mem bers Each and Many Five and Four -Fifteen Children Made Orphans

Police Inspector Schmittberger turned nto Commissioner McAdoo yesterday long report on the Slocum disaster. It contains much valuable information, laporiously collected and approximately correct-especially lists of names of the dead, missing, injured and uninjured-of all who were on the Slocum. The lists contain some duplicates, almost upavoidable when a large force of men goes at such a piece of work, and the tabulators have erronsously counted among both the dead and the missing the eighty bodies that were buried unidentified, thereby reaching a total mortality of 1,031. Withdrawing these eighty and removing duplicates from the lists of dead and missing, the police figures gether, but a certain number not recorded there were buried without going to the Morgue, 26 of them in one day. Others have died in hospital and at home.

It appears that only 17.4 per cent. of those on the Slocum escaped unhurt and that more than 69 per cent. perished—that four times as many lost their lives as escaped unhurt and the slocus of the sl caped injury.

The report shows that two families each lost six members. These were the Heins family of 300 Front street and the Richter lost six members. These were the Heins family of 300 Front street and the Richter family of 404 Sixth street.

Losses of five members were suffered by the Dieckhoffs of 121 Fourth avenue, Brooklyn; the Hartungs of 342 East Twenty-first street, the Kopfs of 337 East Ninth street, the Mullers of 368 Bowery, the Mullers of 1254 Lexington avenue and the Weavers of 304 East Ninth street. Of the Just family, 105 East Eighth street, three are dead and three are missing. Of the Zipsie family, 339 East Twenty-first street, four are dead, one is missing and another is injured. The Reiss family, 70 First avenue, counts four dead and one injured.

Deaths of four were suffered by the families of Breda, 90 Avenue A; Dietrich, 96 Greenwich street; Foelsing, 1914 Third avenue; Gress, 134 Seventh street; Heuer, 129 Division street; Kircher, 185 Russell street.

Only two girls made orphans by the disaster are on the record. These are Carrie Meyer, 15 years old, of 88 Avenue A, whose mother and two brothers were lost, and Grace M. Brunning, 12 years old, of and Grace M. Brunning, 12 years old, of 215 East Twelfth street, whose mother and sister died. The four Weis brothers of 532 Fifth street, whose ages range from 3 to 21, are orphaned, their mother and three other children perishing. The four Lamm boys of 645 East Seventeenth street, aged from 11 to 19 years respectively, lost their mother, sister and a brother.

The luckiest large family on the boat seems to have been the Smiths of 30 Hudson street, Hoboken, six of whom are on the list of the uninjured, with none dead and none missing.

Inspector Schmittberger mentions several statements of witnesses which he took for the use of the District Attorney. Ludwig Foulke of 257 Avenue D gave this terse testimony: "Saw three members of the crew of the Slocum trying to untangle some hose. After a few minutes they threw it away and jumped overboard."

Anna Bose of 185 Avenue A said that the first signal of distress was sounded close to North Brother Island. Fred and John Ludemann of 4 Smith street. White Plains, said that they saw one of the officers of the Slocum don a life preserver and get ashore before half the people got off the boat.

They hitched it to a wagon belonging to Cohen and drove off. Early in the afternoon they brought the wagon back.

"What do you boys mean by stealing my wagon?" demanded Cohen. "That's all right," said Sheridan. "I just wanted to do some business. I wanted to move a couple of families and make some money. I had the horse but no wagon. Just borrowed yours. We have had the wagon about six hours. Now, I'll loan you the horse for that long. That will even things up. That's fair."

Cohen couldn't see it that way, and the boys were arrested. In the Children's Court yesterday Justice McKean said:

"I admire your determination to go into business, but you should be at school, and you should ask first and not take what you want. Where did you get the horse? Did you borrow that, too?"

"No." replied young Sheridan. "You see, father gave me a pony. I could ride it, but it wouldn't let me hitch it up to a wagon. I found a man who had a horse he was willing to trade, and we swapped." "That's all right," said Sheridan. "I

TOO THIN, THE COURT SAYS,

Of Judgment Debtor's Story That He Was Robbed of His Assets on a Car. Supreme Court Justice Truax decided esterday that Dr. Charles Aubrey Bucklin must pay Mrs. Charlotte B. Lawlor's judgment against him for $18,673, or else account more satisfactorily to the Court for the disappearance of $37,000 worth of his assets. Dr. Bucklin, who resides at 237 West Forty-fifth street, says that he lost the money while riding on a Broadway car, but Justice Truax calls this story im-

Mrs. Lawlor got her judgment on Nov. 29, 1902, in a suit for an accounting concerning some property which she said she had intrusted to his care. An execution was returned unsatisfied, and she has never recovered a cent. Mrs. Lawlor applied to the Court for an order compelling Dr. Bucklin to pay to the Sheriff enough money to cover her judgment, alleging that he was well able to pay it, having realized $37,000 by the sale of some stocks in 1901.

Dr. Bucklin's defence was that he had put the money in bank, but had withdrawn it one day, and, putting the $37,000 in cash it one day, and, putting the $37,000 in cash in an envelope, pinned it in an inside pocket. Then he got on a crowded Broadway car, he says, to take the money to his broker's, but when he reached there the envelope and money were gone. He says he advertised for the return of the money, offering $10,000 reward, but never heard of it again. Justice Truax says, in granting Mrs. Lawlor's application:

"This is too improbable a story for me to believe, especially in view of the fact that it was shown that the defendant frequently said, in effect, that if the plaintiff got a judgment against him, she would never collect anything on that judgment, and also, about the time she obtained her judgment, disposed of other property belonging to him, in a manner indicating a desire on his part to rid himself of almost all the property that could be reached by execution."

Buffale Real Estate at $2,880 a Foot. SUFFALO, June 25 .- James E. Shaw, a printer of this city, holds the record for the highest price ever paid for Buffalo real estate. He bought five-twelfths of an inch of land for $100 to clear a title. This an inch of land for $100 to clear a title. This is at the rate of $2,880 a foot. The land is located on Carroll street, a lower east side street, and is occupied by a stable. Carroll street is not even a business street. It is more of an alley than anything else in the section where Mr. Shaw bought, but he needed the fraction of an inch of land to get a clear title to a fifty foot lot and was forced to buy it.
